

Catholic Women's League Tour

St Lucy's donors, the Central Coast branch of the Catholic Women's League, recently toured the school and say they were overwhelmed by its aesthetic and educational ideals.

The League has been contributing financially to St Lucy's for many years as well as providing bursaries for children whose parents would normally struggle to pay the fees.

The visitors were inspired by the new Creative Arts Centre, moved by speeches from the Principal, Jo Karaolis and the Development Officer, Gailene Keen and most of all touched by the beauty of the children and the learning environment that has been created for them.

One of the 16 women, Pam Carew, says it is hard to find words to express what they gained: "It was wholeheartedly the most wonderful day. The generosity and love that oozed from Jo and Gailene, the quiet calm of the classrooms and the recital performance of bells and other instruments will be a lasting memory for everyone who went," she says.
